Gutten's trial will begin on the 14th of this month.
Mr. Pratt's address will continue to be Racine, after the first of next January.
Next Tuesday will be a day of general disaster to the Democrats. But then, they are used to it, and the affliction will not be hard to bear.
A party that never instituted any reforms and that never had a record worth remembering, is not a party which the voters of Wisconsin will endorse next Tuesday.
The defalcations of Baldwin, the Newark bank cashier, will reach $2,000,000. There is not a dollar left, and if the safe had not been too heavy, that would probably have gone with the money.
One of the great reform principles being discussed is that of selling eggs by weight and not by the dozen. In the absence of any great national question to be discussed, this one is coming to the front.
The Democrats are making no speeches this campaign. They have nothing to say which will be of any credit to the party or which will do them any good on election day, and therefore they keep low and send out circulars denouncing General Rusk. This is small business, but it is no smaller than the Democratic party.
GOVERNOR SMITH AT BRODHEAD.
Governor Smith and Thomas M. Nichol spoke at Brodhead last night, to one of the largest political gatherings that ever assembled in that place. The Governor was surprised at the unusually deep interest taken in the campaign work, and he said he never spoke to an audience which paid more attention. He informs us that there is little or no dissatisfaction among the Republicans in that locality, and that a full vote will be polled. The very larger part of the temperance people—those who are too earnestly and strongly Republican—will not give the Democrats any assistance by voting for the Prohibition ticket. There is as much of a necessity of standing by the Republican party and Republican principles as there was twenty years ago, and Republicans generally understand this, and the sober-minded ones, those whose faith can not be shaken in regard to the importance of maintaining the party, will give it their earnest support notwithstanding they may be the most enthusiastic temperance workers.
The sentiment prevailing at Brodhead, as given by Governor Smith, is the sentiment largely prevailing throughout the State, with possibly one or two exceptions. Wherever Republican meetings have been held the attendance has been large and the enthusiasm substantial.

THE REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES FOR THE ASSEMBLY.
Rock county will be represented this coming session of the Legislature by three true, and tried Republicans—John Huntley, of the First district, Oscar F. Nowlan, of the Second district, and John Conley, of the Third district.
Mr. Huntley, who will represent the Beloit district, is one of those sturdy, industrious, thrifty, and intelligent men, who always commands the good opinion and the confidence of his neighbors. He has lived in the town of Avon, where he now resides, for more than thirty-four years. He has grown from boyhood to strong manhood in Rock county, and the longer he has been known the more deeply he is respected. He will make an excellent member of the Assembly because he is one of those broad-minded men, energetic, of good judgment, and of practical intelligence. There will be hardly any opposition to Mr. Huntley, and he will therefore go in by common consent.
Mr. Nowlan, as has been before said, is one of the best representatives of the working classes. Because of his fitness as a representative of these classes, and further because he has a clear head, strong integrity, practical intelligence, and untiring industry, he was placed in nomination for the Assembly. Of course he will be elected. The great mass of voters—business men and workmen—have a candidate in whom they have the fullest confidence, and they will give him a heavy vote.

Mr. Conley, of Clinton, the Republican nominee in the Third district, like Mr. Huntley, is a representative farmer. He has lived in Clinton many years, and is known to be thoroughly competent for the Assembly. He is one of those wide-awake, observing men, one who thoroughly understands the wants of his district, and who is able to honestly represent his constituents. He will be elected by a large majority because he is popular and well known.
The coming of Clara Louise Kellogg to Janesville is one of the most important and interesting musical events in the history of the city. No other singer of her reputation, ability, and power, has ever visited this city. There are now living seven great sopranos of the world—Patti, who was born in Spain, Gerster, in Germany, Lucre, in Austria, Nilsson, in Sweden, Kellogg and Thursty, in the United States, and Marimon, in France. Miss Kellogg is one of the most popular of living sopranos. She has sung in all the principal cities on this continent, and in all the chief capitals of Europe, winning the applause of crowned heads as well as the huzzas of the multitudes. Audience composed of thousands have flocked to hear her remarkable voice, and never yet has she failed to enrapture those who had the fortune to hear her. Throughout Europe her success has been marvellous and well deserved, and that she should visit Janesville is an event over which our people may feel especially proud.

ABOUT THE FACTIONS.
To the Editor.
In yesterday's daily, under the head of "Mr. Nowlan and the factions," you made some very sensible criticisms in regard to anonymous communications. I presume that you correctly stated Mr. Nowlan's position. Certainly upon two different occasions during the week preceding the convention, he assured me that he was not opposed to Mr. Williams, and we both agreed that such an issue was not and ought not to be in the campaign. The right to run for an office is one of the inalienable rights of each and every voter. It frequently happens that two or more friends in the same party, will at the same time run for the same office. Then the friends and perhaps enemies of the aspirants decide between them. The grounds upon which a selection is made may be superior fitness, or that one party has been sufficiently honored, or selfish considerations, or that one party has been more zealous in urging his claims, but whatever the reason or result there should be no ill feeling among the candidates or their friends, after the matter is fairly submitted and determined.
I am entirely certain that Mr. Nowlan was not successful on account of my friendship for Mr. Williams. A majority of the delegates always have been, and are now, warm friends of Mr. Williams and make no ground of complaint against me that I supported him for promotion last winter, when some of his friends were silent or actively opposing him. The writer of the Telegraph article, if I correctly guess him, knows that the reason he assigns for Mr. Nowlan's success is not the true one.
But why speak further of the matter? It tends to discord and defeat. Mr. Nowlan was fairly nominated. He is an enterprising, capable citizen, and ought now to be elected. He will have my vote, good wishes and support. A few of our citizens are anxious for a chance to vote against Mr. Williams. They have a perfect right to do so. But for the sake of harmony and Republican success, let us all possess ourselves with patience, until he is a candidate, and his private and public record, and his claims come before us for examination and decision.
It is but simple justice to Mr. Williams to say that he never asked me to be a candidate, and never suggested such a thing to me. I did not see him for more than a week after my name was proposed, and then told him to have nothing to do with the matter.

PLINY NORCROSS.
CONFEDERATE BONDS.
WASHINGTON, November 1.—Bankers in this city are buying old confederate bonds at about $250 per $1,000, under commissions from New York, the primary orders being in most cases received from England. The old confederate deposit in the Bank of England is the cause of the stir in confederate bonds, and it is likely that the matter will result in a question for diplomatic settlement between the United States government and Great Britain. The men who are in reality the purchasers of the confederate bonds are in England, and it is thought that they must have some information that the English government has decided to distribute the confederate deposit in the Bank of England pro rata among the bondholders, or that, by proper counsel and representation, that end can be secured. It was reported here this afternoon that Secretary Blaine intended addressing a note to the English government on the subject of the old confederate deposit in the Bank of England, but the report lacks confirmation.
It lies on the wings of the morning, good news as well as bad, always. We mean the fame of "Dr. Sykes' Suro-Cure for Catarrh."

THE FLOODS.
Winnebago Lake Overflow—Measures to Let the Water Out of the Lake.
OSHKOSH, Nov. 1.—A conference of representatives from Fond du Lac, Oshkosh, Neenah, Menasha, Appleton, and Kaukauna was held here to-day to devise ways to let off the water of Lake Winnebago, and reduce the inundation in all the towns on the lake. Large delegations were present, and a warm time was had. Oshkosh and Fond du Lac demanded peremptorily that the outlet be made at Neenah through the dam or otherwise. The Appleton delegates gave notice that they would hold Neenah parties responsible if more water was let out. They claimed that the present head from the lake would sweep ruin and destruction upon that city if the water was let on. The contests between the two interests was bitter, but it was finally agreed by the Neenah and Oshkosh parties to tear off the top of the dam, if not damage the whole structure, and fight it out with Appleton, and a committee appointed to investigate how this could be done left for Neenah to-night. The greatest danger is that should any hole made let the water get beyond control, great damage would be done below; but the people here are desperate, and willing to take desperate chances in letting the water out of Lake Winnebago into the lower Fox. It is hoped it can be done without letting the flow get beyond control. The subject agitates the whole valley between here and Green Bay, and the matter is the all-absorbing topic of discussion, and creates great interest. A committee has been appointed to investigate the flow of the Wisconsin river into the Fox at Portage, with a view of stopping the water from that direction.

Western Life.
With only a team and a few dollars the farmer decides to make himself a home in the wilds of the West. His first care is to build a sod-house, as he must have a shelter. That done, about the middle of May he commences breaking prairie, and if he has a good horse-team, succeeds in getting from forty to sixty acres broken by the middle of June. A few acres of the first breaking are usually planted with corn, and a few more with wheat. The sod with an ax, which is used in the breaking, is not cultivated, and is wholly at the mercy of the season. Half the time it is a failure, but of a favorable season yields twenty or thirty bushels to the acre. Melons, pumpkins and squashes usually do well on sod, and turnips sown in midsummer seldom fail. In the fall he backs out his ground, with his breaking plow, taking care to go off the ground from below the spring breaking. The ground should not be plowed deeper than it is thoroughly rotted. The ground is now ready for the crop, and his wheat is sown the last of February, or in March. He has plenty of work to do, and hard work at that. No chance to make money escapes him. The first year or two is almost invariably one of hardships and privations for the average homesteader. The weak or shiftless ones usually give up in despair and turn eastward. The resolute ones stay,

THE COMING CABINET.
Secretary Blaine's View the Composition of the New Cabinet.
NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The Herald to-day says: "Mr. Blaine has expressed freely in very recent conversation his views as to the new cabinet. For himself he says that he will retire in December. The cabinet, he says, will be Grant from top to bottom after January 1. He thinks that Mr. Frelinghuysen will be Secretary of State. Judge Folger was recommended by General Grant and Mr. Conkling to General Garfield for Secretary of the Treasury, last winter. The business arrangements of Mr. James, of New York, will probably make a vacancy in the Postmaster Generalship after Jan. 1, and an undoubted stalwart will be appointed in his place.
As to whether Mr. Lincoln will go or not, Mr. Blaine did not express himself. It is reported here, on good authority, that General Grant is urging General Beale for the navy department. It is known that General Beale is anxious for the nomination, and General Grant's intimacy with him has been marked. He was General Beale's guest during his recent visit to Washington.
The recent nomination of Frank Hatton, a particular stalwart gentleman, to be first assistant postmaster general, is regarded as significant. He has charge of the appointment office, which practically controls the appointment of all postmasters under those of the first class. Whether Mr. Blaine meant that the composition of the next cabinet will be to promote General Grant's nomination in 1871 did not appear in the conversation alluded to. General Grant's friends have been associated with President Arthur in politics, and it is considered natural and proper that the President should select his constitutional advisers from among those with whom he has been intimate in the past.
President Arthur will be his own successor," said to-night a gentleman who has seen much of him since September 20.
"I will not," said Secretary Blaine to a reporter, "recommend any further Consular appointments to the President; my tenure of office is very short. I may leave the office to retire to-morrow, and of course, under the circumstances, I don't consider it proper to make any further recommendations."
"Are there many new applications being filed?" asked the reporter.
"Yes; quite a number, but they will have to wait over for my successor to dispose of."
"Have you any idea, Mr. Secretary, who your successor will be?"
"No, sir. Mr. Frelinghuysen has been prominently mentioned in that connection, but I don't know anything about it."
"You believe then that you will be re-elected?"
"Most certainly."

Are Apartment Houses Hotels?
No less a personage than Gen. Hancock elicited from the Supreme Court some explanation on this subject. He took for his family rooms at one of the leading family hotels in this city. The engagement was for the entire winter, and the General should be ordered away on military duty. This did not occur, the party remained, and during the winter valuable jewels belonging to Mrs. Hancock were stolen from her apartment. The proprietor of the hotel denied being responsible for the loss, for he said that, when rooms are let for the entire season, at a fixed price per month, the establishment is not an inn, but an apartment house. Thus we see that there is opportunity for nice distinctions—even important ones—between the three arrangements: visiting a hotel without making any bargain, hiring an entire house and lot for the year round, and the half-year plan coming into vogue, under which the owner of the building retains the general management of it, just as in a hotel, while the tenant takes a life for a distinct term, just as one takes a house. In the Hancock case the Judge said he considered the establishment a hotel. It was called a hotel and kept in the manner of a hotel on the European plan. And the hiring was not absolutely for the winter, but subject to be closed if the General should be ordered away. Therefore the proprietor was held to make good, as an inn-keeper, for the stolen jewels. But, if the establishment had been avowedly an "apartment house," if no business in receiving transients had been done, and if the rooms had been hired for the winter, irrespective of contingencies, the tenants would, no doubt, have been told that their property was at their own risk with respect to thieves.—New York Tribune

Almost Young Again.
"My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy, inactive condition of the whole system, headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physician or medicine did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old. We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family."—A lady in Providence, R. I.
LON WILLIAMS.
The Alleged Lon Williams Still in Milwaukee.
MILWAUKEE, Nov. 1.—The Lon Williams case becomes more complicated from day to day. The Dunn and Popin county officers did not get off with their prisoner at mid-night as they intended doing, officers of the law here refusing to give up the prisoner on the alleged ground that he would be lynched, and to hold him until the arrival of the Peoria party, who telegraphed late at night that they were enroute here with witnesses to prove that the alleged Lon was William Kuhl, and to prove also that he was in Illinois at the time of the murder.
PEORIA, Ill., Nov. 1.—The William Kuhl, now in jail at Milwaukee, taken for Lon Williams, is a nephew of J. G. Kuhl, a most highly respected and honest citizen, and a cousin of G. A. Kuhl, a prominent grocer here. He was here last winter on a visit to his uncles and cousins. He is a young man of excellent character, whose home is in Peoria, but who recently went north for the benefit of his health. There is certainly a mistake in his arrest.

CIGARMAKERS.
Nine Hundred Cigarmakers Quit Work at Milwaukee.
MILWAUKEE, Nov. 1.—The cigarmakers of this city, working in nearly 200 shops, and numbering 900 men, belonging to the union, struck during the noon hour to-day for an advance of $1 per thousand cigars made. Notice was served upon the employers, and at the close of the business to-night, forty-two factories, including several of the leading ones, had acceded to the demand. The largest establishment, however—Ascherman & Co.'s—has not yet acceded, and claims that it will submit a proposition in the morning, which, if refused, will close their house until other workmen can be got. The union here claims to have $70,000 in the treasury, the accumulation of a number of years, and has had to-day telegrams from leading cities offering aid in the morning, which is very quiet and orderly, and will conduct the strike on business principles. They expect their lead to be followed by cigar makers all over the country. The claim that they can hold out indefinitely. The general opinion is that the strike will succeed.

Indigestion.
Among our vegetables are those containing sulphur, such as onions, leeks, watercresses, radishes, mustard and cress, etc. Their use should be shunned by people of weak digestion. If they are not digested they produce sulphuretted hydrogen and bad breath and uncomfortable distention from that gas. Celery is a salutary vegetable; so are some roots. Carrots and parsnips, if thoroughly cooked, will be better digested than turnips, as the latter also contain much sulphur. Steaming these vegetables is far better than boiling them, and preserves the sugar in them. All fibrous materials should be avoided, such as cabbage-stalks, green beans with strong or coarse fibers, green beans with fibrous skin, etc. Whatever is used of vegetables must be thoroughly well-cooked and reduced to a pulp without losing its nourishing properties. Steaming, wherever it can be employed, is, therefore, better than boiling. Salads can only be used sparingly, made of dainty head lettuce, the leaves having been well picked. Cucumber can never be eaten raw, but, if stewed, it is digestible. Of fruits the berries are the best. Strawberries eaten with sugar or raspberries are better than currants; oranges are good, eaten without the skin; apples or pears must be eaten sparingly, and are best stewed with sugar and a little spice. Oranges ought to be avoided unless eaten without the pulp; lemons, however, may do good if they are made into a lemonade with warm water and sugar. Nuts are entirely to be done away with. Of vegetable beverages we have tea, coffee and cocoa to consider. There is no doubt that tea has a refreshing influence on the digestive organs, if used moderately and not in too strong an infusion. It is better, however, not to use it in the morning for a weak digestion, as it will stimulate too soon and rather weaken than strengthen the flow of the gastric juice at that time. One cup of tea a day is all that can be allowed for the dyspeptic. Coffee, when well roasted, is more strengthening in its effect, but it must not be taken too strong, and more than this, it must not have been boiled, but only have had the infusion taken off. I may here say that the roasting of coffee leaves, as yet, much to be desired, and that inferior coffees might be made more useful than they are if they were properly prepared. A preparation has come under my notice which I found most beneficial with persons of weak digestion. The best brand of Java or Mocha coffee, mixed with roasted and ground dandelion root in proportion of two or one of dandelion to three or four of coffee. This article, if delicately manufactured, is a most wholesome mixture and can be well recommended.—Food and Health.

A Strange Accumulation.
Thomas Dick puts the hoarding of wealth in this striking way:
"Suppose a man could lay up a stock of clothes and provisions sufficient to last him for 800 years, what would it avail him, since he can live at most but from seventy to 100 years? Suppose he laid up in a store-house 70,000 pairs of shoes, to what end would it serve, if he could make use, during his whole life, of only the one-hundredth part of them? He would be in the same condition as a man who had 100 fishes placed before him at dinner, but who could partake of only one; or of a person who had 100 mansions purchased for his residence, but could occupy only one. How ridiculous it would appear if all that could be said of a man while yet he lived was simply this—that his whole life had been spent in collecting and laying up in a storehouse 60,000 mahogany chairs which were never intended to be used for the furniture of apartments, or 70,000 pairs of trousers which were never to be worn! And where is the difference, in point of rationality and utility, between such absurd practices and hoarding thousands of guineas and bank notes which are never brought forth for the benefit of mankind. There is no conduct connected with the pursuits of human beings that appears more absurd than such practices (however common) if examined by the dictates of reason."

BRIDGEMAN.

—Kellogg to-night.

—Regular meeting of the city council this evening.

—Thirty days has November. Dirty days, too, some of them.

—Yankee Doodle still clings to his cups, and has been locked up in jail to give him a chance to sober up.

—Punk-eye still lingers in these parts, and two or three new cases have been reported among the equines.

—The arguments in the bill-board case have been finished, and Judge Patton will give his decision to-morrow.

—The river is two or three inches higher than yesterday. The rise is due probably more to the wind than anything else.

—Fay Templeton's "Olivette" company is the next entertainment booked at the Opera house. The date is Thursday evening, November 10.

—Clara Louise Kellogg and her company appeared in Beloit last evening. The Opera house was crowded, and everybody was delighted, of course. The company came from there this afternoon, and at once prepared to give the long looked for concert here this evening.

—Janesville has shown its appreciation of good shows lately. Last night there was such a crowd at the Opera house that chairs were placed in the space usually occupied by the orchestra, and in other convenient places for the accommodation of the audience, and even then many stood up by the door.

—The November term of the Circuit Court opens next Wednesday. It is expected that the Bohemian case, in which the jury disagreed, is to be tried again. If so, a long and tedious pull may be expected. Two cases from Racine county are expected to be on trial. One of them is that of Michael Egan, charged with horse-stealing, the other is George E. McCullough, charged with forgery.

A Heavy Swell.

Jacob H. Bloomer, of Virgil, N. Y., writes: "Your THOMAS' ELECTRIC OIL cured a badly swollen neck and sore throat in forty-eight hours; one application also removed the pain from a very sore toe; my wife's foot was also much inflamed—so much so that she could not walk about the house; she applied the Oil and in twenty-four hours was entirely cured."

Hon. Wm. Taylor, Boston, is well again. Completely cured of a scrofulous humor which poisoned his blood, covering his face and head with sores, by Cuticura Resolvent internally and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally.

Chas. Bayre Hinkle, Jersey City Heights, N. J., reports that his son, a lad of twelve years, was completely cured of a terrible case of Eczema by the Cuticura Remedies. From his head to his feet was one mass of scales.

THE BANKER'S DAUGHTER.

This play was given at the Opera house last evening, and proved a complete fulfillment of the many promises by which the expectation of amusement lovers had been raised to a high point. The audience was very large, and very enthusiastic. The fact that it drew so heavily as to pack the house, its date being just preceded by that of McKee Rankin, and to be immediately followed by that of the Kellogg concert, is a fair indication of the popularity of the play. The high expectations of all were fully met, and the verdict of the audience pronounced it one of the best society comedies ever given here.

The play itself has an interesting romance as its basis, and the incidents which naturally come forth from this, are varied, thrilling, and pleasing. Different emotions are portrayed by flashes, so that the smile chases quickly away the tear, and the thrilling suspense of each approaching crisis is relieved by a sudden dash of humor. It is a very happily constructed, brilliant rather than strong, play.

The company proved a most excellent one. There was not among all of the members, one undeserving of praise. Joseph Whiting, as "John Streblow," carried his part of a rich American gentleman grandly. In his portrayal of emotions at discovering that his wife, whom he adored, had given him her hand without her heart, and in his showing of such manliness as to finally win her love, fairly and fully, he did some most excellent work. Miss Adele Belgard, as "Lillian," in the title role, had a very different part, which she sustained strongly. She was a little weak in some of the emotional passages, but this was scarcely noticeable save to those who had seen others perform that part more strongly. W. S. Daboll as "Count de Carojan" proved a perfect Frenchman.

E. L. Tilton as the father of the banker's daughter, and G. A. Wilks, as his partner, were excellent representatives of "the solid business men of New York," and the latter had a vein of wit and humor which was very enjoyable, given as it was in so easy and natural a manner. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Walcott proved a strong team as fun-makers, the former appearing as the American tourist, who "could do" London and Paris in two or three days, and whose thoughts of his dry goods business were mixed up continually with a memoranda of the nights which he was glancing at in Europe. Mrs. Walcott, as Mrs. Brown, the young, dashing wife of an infirm old millionaire, whose death she was sighing for, was one of the sprightliest, witliest, most natural characters ever seen on the stage here.

All the members of the company bore themselves with a grace and ease, which made the play enjoyable. There was not a bit of strained wit, or overacting throughout the whole entertainment. The play was put upon the stage with elegant properties and very fine scenery. In fact a more enjoyable entertainment of the kind has not been given in this city, every feature being in keeping with the excellence of the whole.
